

COMMISSIONED PAINTINGS

Commissioned pieces bring out another level of creativity, because I am working with the many layers of the spirit of the client, transmitting the unfolding story of their soul*s dreams. Often, they take me a long time, because I am translating these stories with precision, care and intention.

For this reason I take on very few commissions, and am selective with who I work with.

Throughout the painting process, I enter into deep meditative states to connect into the story that wants to be painted, and more importantly, to bring forth the allies that want to become life-long, healing companions to the client. The painting becomes an intimate and daily part of my life, as I dedicate myself to this medicine.

Paintings take between 3-9 months, depending on size.
